Jules Guerin Makes Supreme Sacrifice.

Widely Known Coleman Boy Gives Life for Country.

Another Coleman boy has paid the supreme sacrifice. On the 27th June Jules Guerin met with a fatal accident near Calais. The details are not quite clear, but it seems while performing his duties in transportation his horse took fright and threw Jules heavily to the ground. He never returned to consciousness. He was buried near Calais on July 3rd.

He was a member of the Institutional church. Previous to leaving for the front he was in the employ of Mr. W. L. Oumette. All who ever came into contact with this splendid young man feel they have lost a sincere friend. He had a bright future had he lived. Our sincerest sympathy goes out to his father and mother and little Jean. But they have the consolation that he was a good son, sterling in quality, and the memory of him must be the sweetest. His life was not lived in vain.

ST. ALBAN'S CHURCH

On Sunday last special services of Thanksgiving and Intercession were well attended. In the evening the church was full. Mr. W. H. Giggle, F.G.C.M., again presided at the organ and also gave a fine rendering of the solo, "Arm, Arm ye Brave," the accompaniment being nicely played by Mrs. Disney. The choir gave a very devotional rendering of the anthem "The Hymn of Peace."

The Rev. H. Clay preached from the text "The Windows of Heaven" and illustrated from the war's progress how the Empire and its allies had good cause for gratitude to God and for hope that with Divine help the war would be won and a world's peace result.

After the evening Service a short recital was given by Mr. Giggle, whose playing and singing were of a very high order and well appreciated by those present.

NEXT SUNDAY

Holy Communion will be at 8 a.m. Evening Service at 7 p.m. Preacher the Rev. H. Clay. Mr. W. H. Giggle F.G.C.M. will again preside at the Organ.

The Children from the Victoria Home are having a delightful time in camp and have decided to prolong their stay until the 22nd. They hope to take in the Chautauqua on the last day.

CANADA FOOD BOARD SAYS

The following cable has been transmitted to Canada from the Food Controllers' Conference in London:

"Resolved that while the increased production of the United States and Canada rendered it possible to relax some of the restrictions which have borne with peculiar hardships upon our people, yet it is absolutely necessary that rigid economy and elimination of waste in the consumption and handling of all food stuffs, as well as increased production, should be maintained throughout the European and Allied countries and in N.-th America; that it is only by such economy and elimination of waste that the transportation of the necessary men and supplies from North America to the European front can be accomplished, and stocks of food stuffs can be built up in North America as an insurance against the ever present danger of harvest failure and the possible necessity for large emergency drafts to Europe; and further, that we cannot administer the food problem on the basis of one year's war and that we must prepare for its long continuance if we are to assure absolute victory."

Horse meat's being sold in Westlake market in Seattle.

Red Cross Lecture Well Attended.

F. W. Godsall Discusses Prisoners of War in Germany—Dance at Close.

There was a good attendance at the Eagles' Hall on Friday evening last, when F. W. Godsall, of Cowley, Alta., delivered a stirring address on "Prisoners of War in Germany," using his nephew's diary as reference. The speaker had evidently made a careful study of the subject and the audience found it most engrossing, none of them, however, having any desire after hearing Mr. Godsall to exchange their present environment for anything in Germany. A collection amounting to some $15 was taken up after the lecture for the benefit of the Red Cross. The dance, which followed, was well patronized; the music was good and the refreshments served by the Red Cross ladies thoroughly appreciated. The result financially, was very satisfactory. In connection with the lecture, the Red Cross thanks the Eagles for the free use of the hall; Mrs. Tapson Jones, Mrs. F. Stokes, and Mr. J. Emmerson, for providing the music for the dance, and also Mr. Sam Moores, who brought Mr. Godsall from Cowley, and Mayor Morrison for driving him back the proceeds accordingly proving net to the Red Cross.

HONOR ROLL IN SCHOOL

Dear Sir:

With reference to the death in action of one of our Coleman School boys, I would like to suggest that a roll of honor be placed in the school, showing the names of those pupils who are serving, or have served with the colors. The numbers are larger than most people imagine and it would not only act as an incentive to other boys, but be a lasting memorial to those brave lads of ours who are doing their dangerous work so well. Of course we have the rolls in our churches, lodge room, etc., and it is only right, I think, that a roll should be placed in the school in which so many of these gallant lads were taught. I am sure that the chairman (Mr. A. Cameron) would endorse such a procedure, as he and the school board members are proud of the record from the school. If the board would not be allowed to supply the funds for the purposes, I think there are plenty of public spirited people in the Town who would contribute towards it. Of course all this is only a suggestion but I would like to see it acted upon and perhaps you would give it your support in your columns.

Yours faithfully,
HARRY W. CLARK.

A BUTTERFLY INVASION

Nelson city has been invaded by millions of red-admiral butterflies. The streets are literally alive with the black and red creatures flitting here and there and everywhere. The red-admirals make their appearance every year but this year a larger number than usual are in evidence. Old timers will venture no reason.—News.

BIG BATTLE CRUISER

Our daily bulletins of shipbuilding progress, thrilling as they are, have omitted to note that the United States is building a battle cruiser which will be the largest and fastest ever fabricated. Its length over all is 874 feet breadth 90 feet; she will develop 180,000 horse power, and her speed will be 35 knots; she is to be equipped with ten 14-inch guns and a complement of 115 officers, 1,056 sailors, and 64 marines. Her cost is calculated at $5,000,000.

BIG MILITARY EARNINGS

The Maple Leaf Milling Company's balance sheet shows a profit for the year ending March 31st of $1,021,206.50, as compared with net earnings of $789,044.47 the year previous.

NO LASTING PEACE IS POSSIBLE UNTIL MILITARISM IS CRUSHED

MUST SHOW ENEMY THAT WAR DOES NOT PAY
The Real Objective of the Allies is the Liberation of the World,
And to Show the German Nation that Justice is Stronger than Tyranny

Mr. Bonar Law, speaking to a group of parliamentarians and commercial men in London, has expressed the belief that "the final hour of this war is upon us and if in another three months our enemies have won no strategic object, then their campaign will have failed."

In view of the change in the exchequer belief that victory for the enemy will no longer be a possibility if the allies pass through the coming storm without the loss of Paris, the Chamber of Deputies that what must now be a strategic object—he sees no immediate hope of peace. It is not enough to convince the German war lords that they cannot defeat the allied nations. That and the justice of the cause must be shown the Germans; it is stronger than tyranny, that civilization is more powerful than barbarism. "It will be fatal to the world and fatal to the Germans themselves," he says, "if the war is not fought to the lesson that war does not pay."

That phrase sums up the situation in its essential features. Prussia has been able in the past to make war pay, but the wars of Denmark in 1864, Austria in 1866 and France in 1870 were all factors of importance in the making of modern Germany. If the tremendous "look" of the Russian campaigns of the past thirty years can be summed up, it also will be recorded as having "paid," even though in Germany has invested the lives of two and a half millions of her people. The one war for civil rights which dethroned the German war lords of this sort, so that militarism may have no opportunity of setting the conquests of German arms against the blood and misery of the world war.

The most already public men in Germany who recognize the truth and who are striving to destroy military domination. On Thursday in the Reichstag, while the whole world rediscusses a position of economic slavery was under consideration, Dr. Cohen, an Independent Socialist, declared that "this treasury is nothing but bartering for petroleum and railways." The great war lords of the world, Lloyd George, declared the purpose of the allied nations when, after reviewing American troops in France, he said: "What are we for? Not for Germany, not for ourselves, but for the world." What called to order he declared his belief that "unless militarism is overcome we cannot obtain a lasting peace."

"This is the real objective of the allies, the thing for which they are determined to continue the terrible struggle. The issue is something far different from that of the last war. It is not less than the life of the world." Lloyd George declared the purpose of the allied nations when, after reviewing American troops in France, he said: "What are we for? Not for Germany, not for ourselves, but for the world." What called to order he declared his belief that "unless militarism is overcome we cannot obtain a lasting peace."

Allied Officers Cheered Raiders

Prisoners in Mannheim Victim of Bombs When Flyers Shelled City

South German newspapers, in order to reassure the nervous and angry populations of towns along the Rhine, attempt to explain away, as usual, the actual cause of the bombardment of Mannheim. It was really the most terrible raid on a German town during the war. The Germans officially announced that five were killed and 40 wounded, but many figures could be quadrupled. Several victims were, unfortunately, allied officers who, disdaining shelter, cheered the allied aviators.

The residents of Mannheim also were惊惶 in witnessing five or six German machines running away from the British. Three of the former were brought down in flames near the town. The British anti-aircraft and anti-gas factory, recently completed by Frank W. Simon, architect of the Manitoba parliament building, was hit by a bomb and exploded. In a recent air raid, a German bomb struck and practically demolished the bronze foundry known as LaFondre Barbedienne. In the centre of this building stands the half-completed statue which is to be the topmost figure on the dome of the new parliament buildings. The figure escaped unscathed in the explosion, represents a "winged Mercury" carrying a sheaf of grain, will tower on the dome. It is being cast under the personal supervision of Alphonse Gardet, who, Mr. Simon declares, is the master of all bronze sculptors in the world today.

Robbing the Dead

A member of the Toronto Highlanders writes to his father telling him of some exploits of a battalion of the Black Watch. In the course of the battalion's exploration of newly-won ground at Marlborough, they came upon a body which had been buried for twenty years, which were stored some 80 or 90

suits of German soldiers' clothing which had already been worn; and the conclusion was drawn that at that time the Germans were economizing by taking the clothing and accoutrements of their dead for further use.

Editorial Comment

THE WAR

Progress by the allied forces has continued throughout the week, the Germans retreating with heavy losses in men and war material. The claim is made that a total of 40,000 prisoners have been taken during the German retreat from the Soissons salient.

The landing of allied and Japanese forces in Siberia is expected to lead to a declaration of war on Japan by the Bolsheviks, but their ability to take the offensive seriously is doubted.

H. C. L. GROWING

These are days when everything is "going up." Freight rates have gone up following an increase of wages to the men, and now the price of wheat and flour is to go up accordingly.

Everything has practically reached a place where old standards of values are entirely shattered and the end seems far from being reached yet.

With half a million men in the war, production would appear to be almost at its former level, and with the new system of thrift and saving enforced by price conditions, what will happen when these men come back? There does not appear to be much chance that there will be more work, but that what there is must be divided up. The women and girls may drop out of the positions they hold, or rather be dropped out, but this will only be a drop in the bucket, so to speak. The illusion that tremendous numbers of the returning soldiers will go on the land is still cherished by many people.

Pianos are in demand in Great Britain. Even secondhand instruments are bought up eagerly at high prices.

Some of them bring double the price paid for them when new. The reasons given are that the piano manufacturers are busy making air planes, or parts of them, and have no time for music, while, on the other hand, thousands of laborers, becoming affluent, want pianos for their humble homes.

Soldiers, wives and dependents of Winnipeg are starting a nation wide movement demanding that they receive an allowance of $100 a month instead of the $42 which is now given them.

Peace River Country Has Great Possibilities

Department of Interior Has Issued Descriptive Booklet and Maps.

The Peace River District has been for many years the subject of much interest and speculation. Alluring tales from adventurous pioneers, of its wonderful resources, charming climate and varying scenery, have long since lent to the district that charm of romance which distance and uncertainty blended with glowing promises. Now however, the land so long famed by legend and mystery is being proved a reality, modern transportation having so far brought it to our very doors. A journey from Edmonton to the town of Peace River for instance, which five years ago consumed nearly two weeks of toll and hardship may now be made in less than twenty-four hours, in comfort at all times of the year, trains to this latest settlers Mecca which is nearly 1,000 miles north of the International boundary line, carrying both sleeping and dining car accommodation.

The Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Branch has prepared and is distributing a new illustrated report on the district based on investigations made by an official of that Branch during the season of 1917. The publication contains interesting information with regard to climate, soil, agriculture, minerals, game water powers, transportation, and education. A map of the district showing general topography also accompanies the report.

The recent reservation in the interests of soldier-settlement of available Dominion lands has also necessitated the preparation of a map which would show the area in Northern Alberta that had been reserved for such purposes. This publication is now available for distribution and should prove of considerable value to the returned soldier who is considering the advisability of settlement in the Peace River Country, likewise to the prospective homesteader as it shows the area within which homesteads may be procured, also the total number of also the total number of quarter-sections that are still available in each township within reasonable distance of a railway. A copy of the report or map or both may be procured free of charge upon application to the Natural Resources Intelligence Branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

PROCLAMATION

GEORGE the FIFTH, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, KING, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.

To all to whom these presents shall come or whom the same may in any wise concern,—GREETING:

A Proclamation of conditional amnesty respecting men belonging to Class I under the Military Service Act, 1917, who have disobeyed our Proclamation of 13th October, 1917, or their orders to report for duty, or are deserters or absent without leave from the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

E. L. NEWCOMBE, ) WHEREAS consider- Deputy Minister of Justice, ) able numbers of men belonging to Class I under our Military Service Act, 1917, called out on active service in our Canadian Expeditionary Force for the defence of Canada under Our Proclamation of 13th October, 1917, although they have thus become by law soldiers enlisted in the Military Service of Canada,

Have failed to report for duty as lawfully required of them under the said Military Service Act and the regulations thereunder, including the Order in Council duly passed on April 30 last,

• Or have deserted.

Or absented themselves without leave from our Canadian Expeditionary Force,

And it is represented that the very serious and unfortunate situation in which these men find themselves is due in many cases to the fact that, notwithstanding the information and warning contained in Our Proclamation aforesaid, they have misunderstood their duty or obligation, or have been misled by the advice of ill-disposed, disloyal or seditious persons.

AND WHEREAS we desire, if possible, to avoid the infliction of the heavy penalties which the law imposes for the offences of which these soldiers have thus been guilty, and to afford them an opportunity within a limited time to report and make their services available in our Canadian Expeditionary Force as is by law their bounden duty, and as is necessary for the defence of our Dominion of Canada.

NOW KNOW YE that we in the exercise of Our powers, and of Our good will and pleasure in that behalf, do hereby proclaim and declare and cause to be published and made known THAT THE PENALTIES OF THE LAW WILL NOT BE IMPOSED OR EXACTED as against the men who belong to Class I under Our Military Service Act, 1917, and who have disobeyed Our Proclamation aforesaid or who have received notice to report for duty on a day now past and have failed so to report; or who, having reported and obtained leave of absence, have failed to report at the expiry of their leave, or have become deserters from Our Expeditionary Force, PROVIDED THEY REPORT FOR DUTY ON OR BEFORE THE TWENTY-FOURTH DAY OF AUGUST 1918.

MONA DUNLOP
WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

The woman—Marie, I understand he's name—is told him that she called to her young mistress to unfasten the door as soon as the alarm was given, but that one of them had reported that the door was locked and that the alarm had been pulled by someone. It certainly was not on the outside of the door, and Barret has been to the Hall this morning and made a thorough search, but there is no sign of the missing key. In the way there was no sign of an insect, of course, and I believe there is some talk of sending to London for a detective. Barret reported at the police station last night yesterday that the man Miss de Rochefort was dead, and added, on his own account that there was something queer about the manner of her death, and they felt that the case was rather more than they cared to tackle locally, so I spoke.

"Despair," replied the doctor, "that will be a tremendous excitement for Castlemore, won't it? Even to consider having a real detective down from town will give us something to do for days, while he really comes. I doubt if we shall ever get over it."

The solicitor smiled sympathetically—he had suffered from the prevailing vice of Castlemore longer than the master of the house, and his wife's debauches were greater than ever Richardson dreamed of! "There's one thing," he said after a moment, "I suppose we shall at least hear more of the mysterious 'Miss de Rochefort's' private history, and that will be a great thing, won't it, doctor?"

Anthony looked grave. "Well, to tell you the truth, Mr. Wakeman," he said, "I don't know what the quiet is all about. There really seems to be some reason for all this secrecy about the people at the Hall, though what it is, I, of course, can't make out. But that woman Marie is truly a mystery, and something is missing which she thinks is serious. I realized that much after my conversation with her this morning. But I suppose I had better make a further examination of the dead girl. I must go through her last night, for once I had ascertained that she was dead, my immediate duty was, of course, to the living sister."

So saying he made his way to the room where the body lay.

CHAPTER III.

The Inquest Will Be on Friday

The dead girl lay on a couch in Mr. Wakeman's dressing room. She had not been touched in life, and her face was still only half washed of the smoke which had blackened it the previous night. Her body had been covered with the blinds which had been wrapped around her when she was brought from the burning house, and this doctor moved gently aside.

Then, calling for Mrs. Johnson, he asked her to get him warm water and cloths, and when he sang out the blood which was caused to drip from the wound which was the awful wound on the girl's right temple.

When his request had been complied with, he gently washed the dead girl's face, and when he had done so, he scanned the dead face, and found the slightest difference could be seen. Even the hair grew in the same lines about the forehead, and the dimple in the corner of the mouth was to a hair's breadth in the same position. The likeness was so great as almost to be bewilderment. He hardly felt sure at which sister he was looking, the dead or the living. However, a glance at the right temple of the girl before him soon brought reassurance, so he set rapidly about his business.

Before long he was absolutely assured that this Miss de Rochefort had not died as a result of the blow she had received on her head. This he examined minutely, and found that the bone at the temple was completely smashed in, as though by a blow from some extremely heavy weapon, delivered with terrific force.

Then there came a knock at the door, and on the doctor's permission to "Come in!" Mr. Wakeman entered.

"Well, doctor," he began, "and what conclusion have you come to?" "I have nothing to say," was the young man's hesitating reply. "Just come here for a moment, Mr. Wakeman, and look at this place on the head. I only know one weapon which could have produced a wound like this."

"And what is that?" the solicitor queried in rather an awe-stricken tone.

"A life preserver," the doctor replied. "You know what I mean? Those things, death-dealing instruments which are usually associated with hooligans and desperate burglars. It may have been a burglar who did this, you know. If the girl screamed or struggled, like that, she might have struck her without thinking of it. However, that doesn't sound very feasible. Anyway, one person can tell us—the sister who is living upstairs. I wish to heaven I didn't have to do this, but I must recover her. I'm afraid it's a really serious case, Mr. Wakeman!"

"Of course, something may come out in the inquest," the solicitor suggested. "I wish you'd tell me what you know something that she won't tell, but might be persuaded to tell the coroner. It's extraordinary the respect these people have for the law. I don't suppose she even realized that she was breaking the law, representative of that great force!"

"Well," said the doctor. "I'll have to hurry up and report all this; but before I go, I must see how my patient is getting on. Come along on the ride home, and you may become delirious and if she does, there are certain instructions Marie must have."

He bounded up the stairs two at a time, but slowed down before he reached the darkened room in which Miss de Rochefort lay.

As he entered, Marie rose.

"Doctor," she said, "I think madame is becoming conscious. She has just spoken one or two words." "Conscious?" asked the doctor, surprised. "Impossible, Marie. I fear she may be delirious, though. What did she say?"

"I could hardly understand her words, monstrous she said them all the time, but when you asked her something like 'No, no, do not touch her,' but I could not be certain."

The doctor bent over his patient. "Yes," said he after a moment, "as I feared, she is very feverish, and you must exert every effort to keep her cool, a good deal for the next few hours. Do you think you can manage her until I can get a nurse?"

"A nurse, monsieur! The French woman almost scolded him. That is impossible, I myself will be her nurse; she must have no other!"

A German Illusion

The Moral and Economic Handicap Under Which All Germans Will Labor

One of the illustrious most sedulously cultivated in Germany has been that "after the war" there would be a return to the economic status quo, and that "business as usual" would go merrily on. This was the general opinion of the Allies having been advanced. The view of most general acceptance is that the Great Pyramid was reared as a tomb for some Egyptian king, perchance Machechodus, who dwelt in the valley of the Nile at a period when its construction was commenced. By some authorities its building is attributed to Ramases the Second, others claim King Khufu to have built it. The foundation stone has been computed to have been laid 2170 B.C.; to complete the task of building, 230 years were necessary. The Great Pyramid which stands on the west bank of the Nile, a few miles distant from Cairo, possesses one proper passage of entrance, this leading into a chamber, the ceiling of which is completed, the sides and bottom being unpolished. This passage branches off at the upper end into a long hallway known as the Grand Gallery, upon a level with which stands the Queen's Chamber. The chief room of the pyramid is the King's Chamber. This contains a stone box, the only relic of furniture within the construction. It is conjectured that other chambers are existent, an examination of which will not be difficult.

The material utilized in the erection of the Great Pyramid is limestone. The floors and ceilings are of granite. The Great Pyramid is situated at the geographical centre of the world's land surface, including North America. Its fate is unknown, but all meaning obscure, however obscured in the mists of centuries long ago. —J. D. Athelney Evans.

The Great Pyramid of Egypt

Ranks Among the Seven Wonders of the World

The most wonderful masonry construction of the world, and ranking among its Seven Wonders, is the Great Pyramid of Egypt. There are blocks of stone in this Pyramid which were composed of sandstone, a weight four times greater than any other obelisk of Egyptian workmanship. Indeed, one of the massive blocks of the Great Pyramid, situated upon the authority of a celebrated author, weighed 1,500 tons, nearly nine hundred tons. Not a few of the Pyramids are thirty feet in length, and are maintained in position with a cement, the materials of which are of the same quality as those of later centuries. An area of upwards of twelve acres is occupied by the base of the Great Pyramid, which rears its height 484 feet. The gross weight of the Pyramid is calculated to be six million tons, and in order to remove this huge mass, it would be necessary to utilize six thousand engines, each possessing a capacity to draw one thousand tons! In accordance with the opinion of the celebrated French engineer, Brunel, no metallic substance is known which could be adapted to the building of machinery whereby the removal of the Great Pyramid could be undertaken.

The Saskatchewan government has just announced a series of competitions open to those engaged in the dairy industry in that province.

The first competition is the one open to all farmers of the province who milk at least five cows. This competition has been arranged with a view to increasing the production of milk in the province. Prizes will be awarded on the dairy farm, the efforts of the farmers whose herds show the largest proportionate output of butterfat. This competition will be open to the persons who have the largest number of cattle, and the average yield per animal.

Creamery men will also compete in a contest for all-round average. Each creamery man will submit a small box of butter to the competition for the next six months, and the winner will represent Saskatchewan in the inter-provincial contest to be held during January.

Creamery men will also compete in the "Ideal Creamery Competition," prizes will be awarded to the creamery managers for the creameries with the best kept surroundings.

In the "Ideal Creamery Competition," British aerodromes, but not the encroaching aerodromes of other countries, will be favored.

"Nothing else counts here," declared a German officer of marines and pilot who accompanied him. "The way these squadrons work is the finest thing I ever saw. In the month I have been here my admiration has increased from day to day.

Even one of them, the best, is inferior to the lowest in rank, is imbued with the one idea—results."

When the weather is suitable, the machines make four bombing expeditions in twenty-four hours. They do not fly in formations, but one machine after another, sending down such a continuous rain of projectiles on the enemy that they do not stop, as they did the other day after firing for hours without success.

Of course, Fritz retaliates by bombing British aerodromes, but the English aerodromes, or other countries, is so favorable that the British machines are most likely to be used on bombing expeditions, so that the worst the enemy can do is to damage our supply lines. One can imagine them returning to their own aerodromes with reports of great success and while celebrating at the mess being extremely annoyed by bombs from the very machines they had just sent away.

Photographically, I voyaged along the Belgian coast and overland to Antwerp, viewing the country at the airman's eye. Perfect photographs showed a foot of the way I went. I looked into Bruges harbor as it was a few days ago, with torpedo boats unable to leave, tied up and with fires out. I looked at Dunkerque after the recent bombing.

I looked at Bapaume itself, which is apparently intact, and is never bombed even accidentally. These photographs show so much of the results accomplished that they are responsible for the impetus of the English. They are not afraid to bomb their own aerodromes and planes.

After competition will be held in which creamery butter will be tested to determine the highest average score for the year at the grading station. This will be a test of the creamery manager's skill and good fortune throughout the year and will not be based on any one churning.

Competitions such as these will not only create a greater interest in the industry, but should also result in an all-round improvement in existing methods wherever possible.

Surprised at Women

Disproving the Antique Legend That Women Are More Nervous Than Men

The correspondent of the London Times in Paris says the women of the French capital are more highly-strung and nervous than men. They are reviving the truth of an old legend that women are more highly-strung and nervous than men. They are reviving the truth in great emergencies, perils, and moments of crisis. Women often rise to heights of terror unequalled by the hardiest and bravest men. Many Britons, as well as Frenchmen, have wondered at something sphinxlike in their womenfolk during ordeals and periods of trial.

To the question "How does your wife stand air raids?" many husbands have had to answer, "I do not quite know; she is a bit of a puzzle to me. She simply carries on as usual, but I wish she says little while the raid is impending, while it is on, and when it is over."

Women indeed, the real average woman, are the typical physical type of cheap and imaginative literature, the stabilizer. So calm are most women, so reticent as to the effect of the sorrows and wear and tear of the war upon their nerves and emotions, that they remain sphinxlike to most of the demonstrative sex.—Regina Leader.

A Stuffed Prophet

The Kaiser's Advisors Alarmed Over His Hallucinations

According to a news dispatch from Berne, the Kaiser's advisers are trying to keep him from falling into a state of hallucinations. That is an aggravated case, is shown by the fact that Wilhelm now goes about muttering of his "divine mission" to save the world and humanity. This way, paroxysms of apoplectic appearance have brought him to a condition of drivishness.

Even those who worship him as the "All Highest" are beginning to realize that as a prophet he is nothing more than common clay with a stuffing of pretzel and pumpernickel. —New York Herald.

The following tribute to Jules Guerin was received after a notice appearing elsewhere in this issue was in type:

The announcement was received on Sunday morning last of the death of Jules Guerin killed in action in Belgium. The deceased was a Coleman School boy until shortly before leaving to join the Belgian army, which he did on attaining the military age. His parents have resided here for some years, the father and mother both being members of the local order of Oddfellows. The brave young fellow (just turned 20) who has been killed, was a quiet studious lad, universally liked and respected, and the feelings of the community are full of earnest sympathy towards the bereaved parents who have lost their only son. His manly death should be an inspiration to other boys of military age as he joined the Belgian army from a sheer instinct of duty, although away from his native land for years.
